

Megan McClurg Bio

Megan McClurg is a Deputy City Attorney with the Chula Vista City Attorney's Office. She has been practicing law since 2003, and has substantive experience in both civil litigation and advisory matters.

Ms. McClurg spent her first six years with the City of Chula Vista in the civil litigation section of the City Attorney's office, where she represented the City and its employees in a broad range of state and federal civil litigation cases. She then transitioned to the office's advisory section. She currently provides legal advice and assistance to various City departments and divisions including the City Clerk, City Manager, Code Enforcement, Development Services, Economic Development, Library, Parks and Recreation, and Public Works. She also provides advice and assistance to several of the City's Boards and Commissions. She endeavors to assist in creating and maintaining a safe, vibrant city for the residents of Chula Vista as envisioned in the City's Municipal Code and Charter. Her experience living in several locations in the United States and abroad has given her an appreciation for the ways cities not only reflect the goals and values of their communities, but also impact the daily lives of their residents.

Ms. McClurg is licensed to practice law in California and Arizona. Prior to her position at the Chula Vista City Attorney's Office, Ms. McClurg worked as an Assistant Attorney General for the Tohono O'odham Nation, where she advised and represented the Nation in both state and tribal courts, and as a Staff Attorney for Southern Arizona Legal Aid, where she handled civil litigation matters. Ms. McClurg received a Bachelor of Arts degree in German and Political Science from Trinity University, a Juris Doctorate degree from the University of Arizona, and a postgraduate Master of Laws degree in Indigenous Peoples' Law and Policy from the University of Arizona.
