

Hannah is a 3L traditional day student and the Special Projects Editor for Law Review. Hannah graduated from UCLA with a BA in Sociology and a minor in Education. Hannah hopes to become a public interest attorney. She has law clerked at Los Angeles Dependency Lawyers and Los Angeles Public Defender's Office. At Southwestern, Hannah was a Dean's Fellow and has worked in the Children's Rights and Eviction Defense Clinics.